

Lambert & Foster

RECRUITMENT

Rural Surveyor

Lambert & Foster are looking for a qualified Rural Surveyor to meet the growing needs of the business and more particularly, the needs of the Sussex team, to assist in the expansion of its rural service provision.

This is an excellent opportunity for a self-motivated and ambitious individual to join a growing, successful and well-established firm. This is an exciting prospect for someone looking for good remuneration, career development and, although not essential, the ability to contribute to the office's growth and development. This could include the applicant's desire to build their own team or present ideas to senior management on how to develop services and enhance existing service provision. Progression toward qualified CAAV status would be supported if desired.

This vacancy would be suited to someone looking for the next step up in their career or for someone who is already comfortable in managing their own clients but still able to adapt and offer suggestions for change in a progressive company. Either way, the applicant should be able to develop business leads and the reputation of the team they are to be a part of; as well as the wider lettings, planning, architectural, farm, commercial and estate agency teams.

Applicants should hold an RICS qualification or similar; although applications may be considered for a graduate position (where the business will support RICS and or CAAV training) where candidates are able to demonstrate existing industry experience or suitability. Being a RICS Registered valuer is preferred but not essential (training can be provided where appropriate).

Any applicant must pride themselves in delivering a professional service and acting with honesty and integrity at all times.

The role will be based in our Wadhurst office, although applicants may be able to work in our Paddock Wood office and on occasions from home, depending on experience and geographics.
